This is what happened to my Niki. Maybe the newsletter could have something about this horrible cancer so others who are not aware of this will not be so shocked and devastated when they lose their dog within an hour. This is the first time I have ever heard of such a thing happening so quickly.

A Dog's New Year Resolutions

I will not eat other animals' poop. I will not lick my human's face after eating animal poop.

I will not eat "kitty box crunchies".

I will not eat any more socks and then re-deposit them in the backyard after processing.

I will not chew crayons or pens, specially not the red ones, or my people will think I am hemorrhaging.

When in the car, I will not insist on having the window rolled down when it's raining outside.

I will not drop soggy tennis balls in the underwear of someone who is sitting on the toilet.

I will not bark each time I hear a door bell on TV.

I will not play tug-o'-war with Dad's underwear when he's on the toilet.

The sofa is not a face towel. Neither are Mom & Dad's laps.

My head does not belong in the refrigerator.

I will not bite the officer's hand when he reaches in for Mom's driver's license and car registration.

The garbage collector is NOT stealing our stuff.

I must shake the rainwater out of my fur BEFORE entering the house.

Dog friendly New Year's Eve?

The 5 tips you need

Having a dog-friendly New Year's Eve requires using common sense first! Always keep an eye on your dog during the evening and be extra attentive when fireworks, noise and loud music increase. Apply these 5 tips:

1. Get your dog moving

After a dog goes for a long walk, they are usually calm afterwards. Go for a walk with your dog before the evening starts and the chances are far greater that he will not feel as overwhelmed later.

2. Inside is safe

As a general rule, keep your dog inside. If you are hosting a New Year's Eve party, think ahead and dedicate a room or a confined space to your dog. Fill the space with your dog's bed sheets, some food-if you wish, and other familiar items. This room will be your dog's safe place during the evening.

3. Keep your dog busy

Dogs are very curious animals. To counter the intriguing action of New Year's Eve, you have to find alternative ways to entertain your dog. Try buying a new toy; if a dog has something new to play with, he is far less likely to care about what's going on around him.

4. Food and water...

Always make sure that your dog has access to water and food. Nevertheless, keep his daily routines; your dog should not feel that something is different. By doing this, your dog will feel more relaxed and less inclined to run off if scared.

5. Beware of alcoholic beverages

Your dog or cat may find the smell of alcohol appealing. Alcoholic beverages, can be harmful to a dog or cat. Keep alcoholic beverages out of your dog's reach. The least you want to do is have to visit the vet on one of the most days of the year!
